How to Get Rid of Anxiety The first thing that is most important is to go to see your doctor about your anxiety. Your doctor will take an exact history and will be able to determine what may be causing the problem. First, take a deep breath and relax. Being mentally prepared before you even talk to the doctor will help you stay relaxed when you are in the doctor's office. Try to smile or be happy as the doctor questions you. We highly recommend that you tell the doctor you are feeling better when you come in for a first visit. Next, ask the doctor to explain why you are feeling anxious. Sometimes doctors will recommend medication without a discussion with the patient. If the doctor does suggest medication, you may be surprised at what the side effects are. Next, talk with your doctor about your fears. Is your fear about death or does it come to your mind every time you think about your income? Is it something that is happening in your life? If it is something else, ask the doctor to talk about it and why it is bothering you. The doctor can also explain how to cope with it. We recommend you discuss your concerns with a social worker. You may not have any family members who understand your situation, so get to know what a social worker does. If you are not sure, ask a friend or neighbor. Do you have some friends who are supportive of your current situation? Having someone who understands and will be on your side can make a world of difference. It is also helpful to know about support groups. Support groups may be a group of people with your same type of situation that have been through what you are experiencing. Support groups can help you understand what you are going through and help you cope. Find support groups in your area and join them. You may also want to look into counseling. A mental health professional can help you understand what is causing your anxiety and help you overcome it. If you already have a therapist
